Response to Arguments

1. Applicant's arguments filed 9/29/03 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

In response to the applicant's argument that Fleek fails to disclose detecting a session renewal, and time limit to a communication session.

Examiner states as the applicant agreed Fleek acknowledgment timeout to the session time limit. Therefore, Fleek by using acknowledgment timeout, let the system know, that it is time for a new transmission, when a remote station receives a response to the request message from the base station, the base station listen on the first frequency for a hop cycle trailer signal. Upon seeing the signal, the station will hop to a second frequency indicated in the trailer signal. The second frequency is the frequency at which the stations communicate is the frequency at which the stations communicate with each other. If, however, a remote station does not receive a response by a certain time, it hops to a third frequency that is randomly chosen.

When remote station hops to the a third frequency the communication on first frequency is ended, therefore the session ended, and by hopping to the third frequency the session renewal and remote station claim renewing a communication session for a second session time limit.

Fleek on column 5 lines 36 specifically disclose that after remote station waits for amount of time, and begins the entire sensing and transmit procedure all over again.

Fleek continues on column 5, that after a packet has been transmitted, the station waits for an acknowledgment message to be sent by the destination statio of the original data packet . If after a chosen acknowledgment timeout has been reached, no acknowledgment message has been received then the parameter K is incremented. The time limit is depend on the parameter K, can be set to any limit that the designer choose.. Therefore, Fleek does teach altering the tome limit.

In response to applicant's argument that there is no suggestion to combine the references, the examiner recognizes that obviousness can only be established by combining or modifying the teachings of the prior art to produce the claimed invention where there is some teaching, suggestion, or motivation to do so found either in the references themselves or in the knowledge generally available to one of ordinary skill in the art. See In re Fine, 837 F.2d 1071, 5 USPQ2d 1596 (Fed. Cir. 1988)and In re Jones, 958 F.2d 347, 21 USPQ2d 1941 (Fed. Cir. 1992). In this case, Fleek teaches a communication device, that providing a session to a remote user terminal, the session having associated with a first session time limit (col 5 lines 47-59); upon lapse of the first session time limit (col 5 lines 47-59), the communication device determining whether a session renewal has been generated; and the communication device, if having determined that a session renewal has been generated, renewing the session for a second session time limit, and if having determined that a session renewal has not been generated, terminating the session (col 5 48-67, col 6 lines 1-5). Widegren teaches a method wherein the session renewal is caused by a priority status associated with the remote user terminal (col 3 lines 37-56), the Widegren system has a capability that the high priority go through before the call with low priority. Therefore, above teaching of Widegren can be combined to Fleek, in order provide more flexible and advance system. Widegren teaches an apparatus wherein the time limit is determined by a quality of service parameter of the external entity. Therefore, Widegren system can be combined with Fleek system, in order provide better speech service with higher delay tolerance and congestion level.
